Energy Reset? Conflicting Forces in the Energy Space

Keynote Speaker: Thad Hill, President and Chief Executive Officer, Calpine Corp Moderator: Adam Sieminski, James R. Schlesinger Chair for Energy and Geopolitics, CSIS

Thursday, April 6, 2017

George Mason University Schar School of Policy and Government Founders Hall - 3351 Fairfax Drive, Arlington, VA 22201

8:30 – 9:00 am	Coffee and Registration
9:00 – 9:10 am	Introduction and Welcome Jim McDonnell, President, NCAC-USAEE Mark Rozell, Dean of the Schar School, George Mason University
9:10 – 10:00 am Speaker:	Keynote: Energy Reset? An Industry Perspective Thad Hill, President and CEO, Calpine
10:00 – 11:15 am Moderator: Speakers:	PANEL 1: U.S. Petroleum and Natural Gas Markets: Globalization vs. Protectionism Adam Sieminski, James R. Schlesinger Chair for Energy and Geopolitics, CSIS Gary Hufbauer, Reginald Jones Senior Fellow, Peterson Institute for International Economics Erica Bowman, Chief Economist, American Petroleum Institute Michael Cohen, Director and Head of Energy Commodities Research, Barclays
Topics:	The growth of U.S. production of oil and natural gas has been remarkable, giving the U.S. the potential for energy independence. So too has growth in U.S. exports of energy. Increased U.S. shale production led to a change in OPEC policy. What role will U.S. exports play in the global markets? How would policies such as a Border Tax Adjustment alter the landscape? Our panel will explore the possibility for U.S. production, exports and the impact of protectionist legislation.
11:15 – 11:30 am:	Break

11:30 – 12:30 pm Moderator:	PANEL 2: Electricity Generation - Free Markets vs. Government Influence Melanie Kenderdine, Former Director of the Office of Energy Policy and Systems Analysis, U.S. Department of Energy.
Speakers:	Stephen Munro, Editor, New Energy Finance, Bloomberg
	Tom Matzzie , President and CEO, CleanChoice Energy Ray Shepherd , Vice President and Senior Counsel, Federal Government Affairs, Peabody Energy
Topics:	Alternative sources of energy such as wind, solar and biomass have been growing, aided by federal policies. Would a change in administration matter? Have alternative technologies become price competitive even without tax credits? What sources of energy do end users want from their suppliers (and what are they willing to pay for)? Could a push from the new administration encourage a renaissance of more traditional sources of energy, namely, coal? The panel will discuss the future of power generation, from both the producer's and supplier's points of view.
12:30 - 1:30 pm	Lunch
1:30 – 2:15 pm Speaker:	Keynote Speaker: TBD
2:15 – 3:15 pm Moderator: Speakers:	PANEL 3: Energy Infrastructure: Slow Fixes vs. Economic Drivers Adam Sieminski, James R. Schlesinger Chair for Energy and Geopolitics, CSIS Bruce McKay, Senior Energy Policy Director, Dominion Energy Christi Tezak, Managing Director, ClearView Energy Partners Terry Turpin, Director of the Office of Energy Projects, FERC
Topics:	There is no debate that the U.S. needs to address its existing energy infrastructure, including oil and gas pipelines and the electric transmission grid. The new administration has vowed to invest in infrastructure as a way to spur job growth. What projects will be priorities? How will the U.S. pay for them? Will state and local government support or delay implementation? What role will public-private partnerships play? Opposition from interest groups has blocked infrastructure across the country. How can companies work with the public to gain support for these projects? Our panel will explore what industry is doing now and what we can expect to achieve over the coming years.
3:15 – 3:30 pm	Break
3:30 – 4:30 pm Moderator: Speakers:	PANEL 4: Point/Counterpoint Michael Ratner, Specialist in Energy Policy, Congressional Research Service Bob McNally, President, The Rapidan Group David Goldwyn, President, Goldwyn Global Strategies
Topics:	Building off the topics addressed earlier in the day, the discussants will debate these issues from the vantage point of what does the left and right agree on and what they do not. This session should illuminate the key issues confronting the U.S. Administration and Congress and where change is likely to occur.
4:30 – 4:45 pm	Closing Remarks Jim McDonnell, President, NCAC-USAEE
4:45 – 6:00 pm	Cocktail Reception
